How to play:

The first player places one of his faces on any color-ring on the gameboard. As he does this, he says aloud the color of the ring. The player to his left notes the color mentioned, and must put a face on that color-corner of the gameboard, — on any color-ring on that particular section. He then says aloud the color of the ring he put a face on. In this manner the game continues and a crowd of faces forms on the gameboard.

Faces placed on the gameboard may not overlap any faces already played! Therefore, when a player must place a face on, for example, the yellow section of gameboard — it may happen that there is no place left to correctly place a face, on that section. When this happens, the player cannot put a face on the board; instead he must take all of the faces from that color-corner of the gameboard! The next player then may place one of his faces wherever he chooses (as at the beginning of the game), and the game continues as usual.

Note: As the game progresses, as many as 7 or 8 faces may be correctly put on a color-corner, or as few as 3 or 4.

Winning:

The first player who has played all of his faces wins.
